

UK companies are losing out...

You could be reclaiming up to 25% of your R&D costs.

LIBCUS can help you maximise your claim.

Knowing whether you are eligible to claim for R&D can be confusing. If you can answer YES to any of the following questions, call us today for a 'no obligation' conversation regarding your potential R&D claim.

1. Have you overcome technical challenges or uncertainties by developing new software or improving existing systems?
2. Have you developed any software-driven processes that improve internal efficiencies, such as increasing speed and enhancing platforms?
3. Are you combining two or more existing technologies in a unique way, or linking old software with new software?
4. Have you made technological improvements to an existing system?
5. Have you rewritten an existing system to enable it to run on new hardware?
6. Have you undertaken testing?
7. Are you writing new systems such as apps and management tools or enhancing existing ones?

Did you know?

Even if you have capitalised your R&D expenditure, you may be able to claim.

Failed and abortive projects and loss-making businesses can still be eligible.

The scheme is more generous for SMEs. Large companies can also make a claim under the RDEC scheme.
